

EDITING (1)

Answers

1. The campaigners fought hard to keep the village school open. The chairman of the governors won applause from the audience when he explained that they had won the battle.
2. While I trust him, I dislike his companions. Whether you like him or not I will have to offer him a lift.
3. a. 2
b. 3

Correct order:

On the morning of November 10th, bright and early, twenty pupils could be seen hurrying for the north-bound train, eager anticipation written all over their faces.

At four thirty, they arrived at their destination, looking decidedly bedraggled after standing in the rain for hours while waiting for various connections on the way.

After meeting the Outdoor Pursuits Centre's staff, they were taken to their rooms which were cosy and warm and they were able to change into dry clothes.

The introductory talk and film which followed a delicious supper made the pupils feel very excited about the coming week's activities.

They could now relax, feeling confident that even if the weather remained inclement, they could enjoy all the facilities the centre had to offer.